

This aerial perspective rendering illustrates a proposed development on a hillside. The site is characterized by a series of terraced levels and winding paths. A large, modern building complex with a prominent white, angular roof structure is situated on the left side of the hill. Adjacent to the building are several parking areas, some of which are filled with white cars. The landscape is heavily landscaped with numerous green trees and shrubs, interspersed with paved walkways and open green spaces. The overall design suggests a blend of natural terrain with built infrastructure.

